GENERAL ARMSTRONG, AMER. PRIVATEER (REID)

On Sept. 26, 1814, the General Armstrong put into the neutral port of Fayal, Azores, within Portuguese jurisdiction. In the evening a Brit. sqdn. entered port. Later an attempt was made by four boats belonging to the sqdn. to examine the Amer. privateer. The boats were fired upon and retreated. At midnight the privateer was attacked by boats of the sqdn. and a fight ensued.

The claim for indemnity agst. Portugal was first presented by Secy. Monroe in 1815 and corresp. was ineffectually carried on till 1818. It was revived by actg. Secy. Dickens in 1835 and prosecuted till 1850, when Portugal offered to refer claim to arbitration. The offer was accepted, and on Nov. 30, 1852, the award was made by the arbiter. The decision was contested by the claimants, and the case carried to the Court of Claims. The findings of the court were adverse and the claim was finally rejected. In 1878 the claim was revived as a claim for relief agst. the U. S. The bill to pay the claim was introduced in the Sen. during 1 sess., 47 cong., and became a law May 1, 1882, without the President's approval.

Lang and Delano Claim

On Jly. 15, 1854, Capt. Jas. Wheeler, agt. of Lang and Delano, merchants, Boston, arrived in the brig Malala N. Connerly on Aves Is.; Capt. N. P. Gibbs, agt. for P. S. Each co. erected structures and a wharf. On Dec. 13, 1854, the occupants of the island were forcibly ejected. For details see below note under Shelton Claim.

4. Shelton Claim

Philo S. Shelton } Claimants;
and
Sampson & Tappan } H. S. Sanford, atty.

In Apr., 1854, Capt. N. P. Gibbs, brig John R. Dow, agt. of P. S. Shelton, merchant, of Boston, discovered and took possession of Aves Is. On his way to Boston, to report his discovery, Gibbs visited the guano islands in the Gulf of Mexico, where P. S. Shelton was at the time chiefly interested. The Shelton guano trade in the gulf was under the superintendence of Jas. Wheeler. Here Gibbs informed Wheeler, as agt. of his discovery. Wheeler and Gibbs sailed for New Orleans in the John R. Dow. Wheeler then preceded Gibbs to Boston. Failing to induce Shelton to send vessels to the Aves, until Gibbs should arrive, Wheeler gave private information to Lang and Delano, who fitted out a vessel and sent him to the island as their agt. Gibbs, meanwhile, had been sent by Shelton, and landed at Aves on Jly. 15, 1854. He proceeded to erect buildings, a wharf, etc. On Dec. 13, 1854, the occupants of the island were forcibly ejected by a Venezuelan man-of-war, the Amer. flag was struck, and Venezuelan colors were substituted. Early in Jan., 1855, Shelton presented his claim for redress to the gov't. of the U. S.
